

Accountancy firm puts North East on the map

June 10 2011

An accountancy firm is celebrating becoming part of a prestigious world-wide network which has the potential to attract international business to the North East.

Evolution LLP has joined four other UK companies to become part of HLB International's fast growing, dynamic network of independent professional accounting firms and business advisers.

The Teesside based practice will now be the point of contact for all incoming international business covering the North East of England.

Evolution LLP underwent rigorous assessments regarding the business culture, quality of work, competence of employees, policies and procedures to join the four other UK firms in the UK federation.

Joanne Regan FCA, client partner and head of audit was responsible for this nine-month application to become part of the network. She said:

“This is very exciting news for both us and the North East as we will now be representing the region on a global scale.”

“HLB International is a network of independent accounting professionals which is represented in over 100 countries. This is a huge benefit when advising our clients as any international interests, currently and in the future, can be catered for in house. If someone needs tax advice about a project in the Middle East or Australia, we can do that. Equally we can advise on incoming business, for example a Russian company looking to set-up in the North East.”

Managing partner of Evolution LLP, Martin Barber said:

“We are delighted to be part of the network. This is an excellent opportunity for us and our clients to grow as we believe this will provide us an edge when offering advice. We are also looking forward to working with the other firms within the network by sharing knowledge and ideas.”
